Chapter 1 by Espargae

"Is everyone alright?" Huni said.

"What do you think? After what just happened..." a person said.

"Oh. Well then, is everyone not alright?" he replied.

Everyone raised their hand, including Master Ket. The crash had killed off only one of our crew. Our ship, or more precisely starship, The Hark, was blown to pieces due to a malfunctioning of the main engine during landing. At least that's all we know. One minute we are descending on the planet surface, the next all of us rushing to the escape pods. Luckily, I got on the very last one, and we left right before it exploded.

Now stranded on the planet's surface, with no communication, no food, no supplies, many people looked dazed and lost. Then Master Ket's assistant, Huni Jagauni, took stand.

"Well, it seems that we are with no supplies, with no food and zero communication. We are stranded on Planet 781 of the KGS6833 galaxy in the Harkov Quadrant. We have no one to help us, no one to feed us. We are alone. So what we need to do is to work together. Who's with me?"
